Dedication

Alex and Nic Piper tragically died in an automobile accident on November 2, 1988. It is impossible to describe how much they meant to all of us and how much we miss them. Rather than try, we felt it best to let them be remembered by their own words and the words of their closest friends.

When I first sat down to write this essay, I didn't know where to begin. I think it's absurd to give you an essay and have you try to form an opinion of me. What could I write about that sums me up in a page? I thought about writing on everything from my trip to England to my philosophy of life (knowing full well that you haven't the slightest interest in either). For you to get to know me, I think I should write about something I'd like to tell you. I love to write, and I love baseball. So, I'm going to write about baseball.

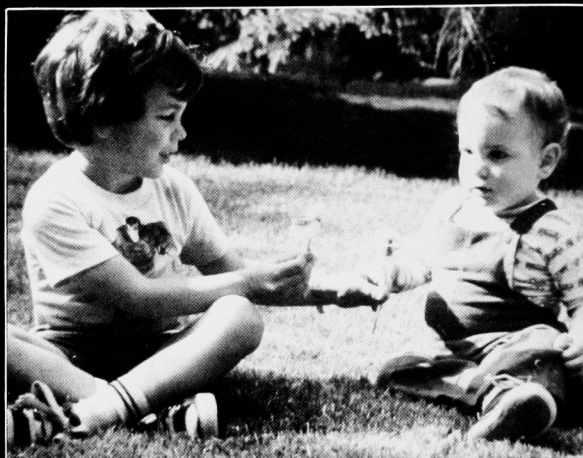

Today, I consider myself a good baseball player, well versed in the fundamentals and knowledge of the game after a lifetime of practice, but it wasn't always that way.

In third grade I joined the park district league, and I was assigned to a team. Everyone was bigger and older than I. I was very shy and nervous. In practice I got by all right, but when game time came, I resembled a pig out of mud. The season went by routinely. We lost virtually every game we played. All kids had to play a minimum of two innings, so I played two innings in right field. When I batted (that was also a requirement), I rarely lifted the bat from my shoulder, and if I did, it was nothing more than a feeble effort to make contact with the ball that was going far too fast for my pathetic reflexes.

Finally, the last game of the season arrived. I stepped into the batter's box and got ready. As the ball crossed the plate, something truly bizarre happened. I hit the ball! It was an easy grounder to the second baseman, but I ran as hard as I could, head down, not realizing the ball had reached the base long before I was half way down the line. As the coach congratulated me, I glowed with pride. I struck out three more times before the game ended, but it didn't matter. I had lost my baseball virginity.

The next year I hit .652 and was the third best hitter in the league. My body caught up to everyone else in size and strength. But I could never recapture the glory and triumph of my first ground out. Looking back now, I wonder if it was just blind luck. I'm sure this could be used as an allegory to several aspects of my life. Of course, everything depends on your own perspective. I am merely trying to give you a piece of myself for you to judge, not too harshly, I hope. I remember that moment so clearly that I could write fifteen pages on every detail about that day, but who cares? Only the concept really matters. Something that under normal circumstances would be considered a failure became one of the greatest successes of my life. It taught me not to give up because sooner or later, at the very least, you'll get lucky. Last of all, it gave me the love of baseball that I still have today as strong as the first time I didn't strike out.

-Alex Piper

"Free Bird"

If I were to leave here tomorrow
Would you still remember me?
For I must be traveling on now
Because there's too many places I've got to see.

Bye bye Babe, it's been a sweet love
Though this feeling I can't change
But please don't take it so badly
Because Lord knows I'm to blame.

If I stayed here with you now
Things just couldn't be the same
Because I'm as free as a bird now
And this bird they'll never change.

-Lynyrd Skynyrd

Memories of Nic...

I remember Nic
when he came to see me this fall and said "I miss you this year" when he sat in the back of the room eating four kinds of candy and I miss Nic very, very much.

Sue Gundlach

When you got past Nic's exterior he was kind and caring

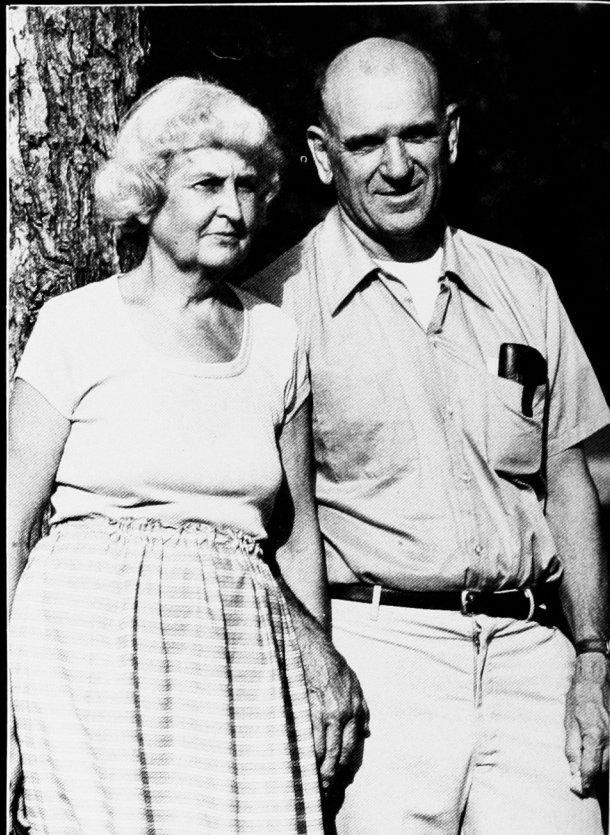

I want to give Nic my hat. He always wanted to wear it.

His presence made me feel good and now I feel the pain of not being able to tell him.

I think the most important feeling can convey to you is that I loved Nic, and I will be there for you...

In Loving Memory of Evelyn McCarty

It should easy be to describe the most wonderful person in one's life but it is not. I do know that life without her is quite empty. Evelyn's life, other than that of her family, was devoted to doing things for the welfare of people more unfortunate than her. Her most demanding project was being the leader of a women's group who prepared things to help patients in Cook County Hospital. I still continue to receive phone calls from people seeking her help.

Evelyn's life was as much attached to North Shore as mine has been. She attended almost every activity that took place here, whether it be a game, a play, an opera, a party or an alumni gathering. She loved them all. When I am coaching games I look into the stands to see her. I always knew that she would be there. And in my heart I will always know that she will.

-Mac McCarty

Farewell, Mr. Hall.

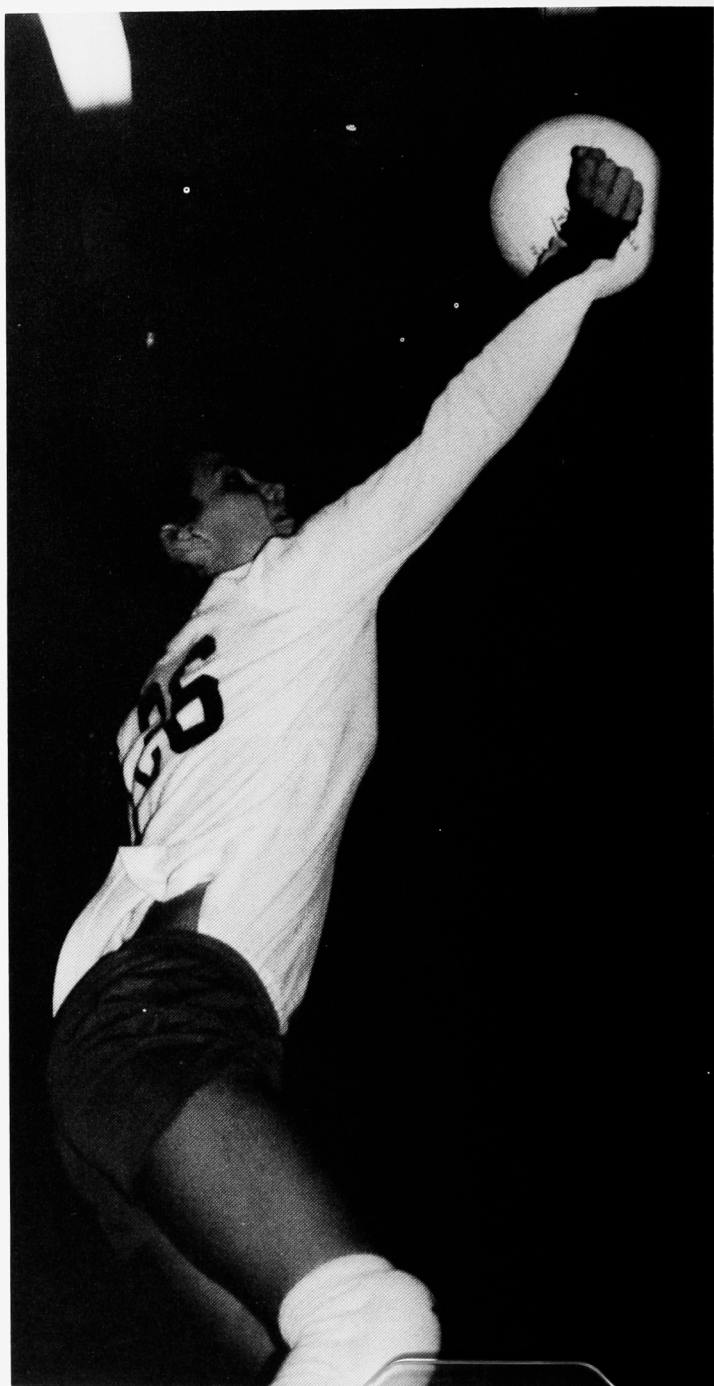

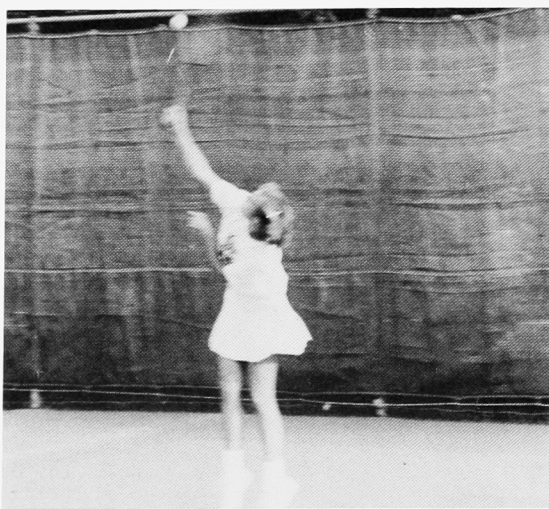

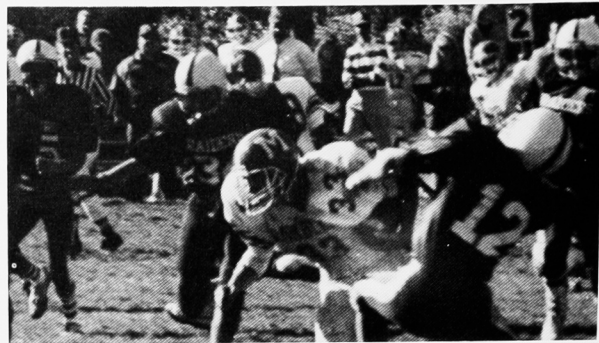

"It was a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day." For the past ten years, the story of Alexander, which contains these famous words, has been read at least once every year by Headmaster Richard P. Hall. However, 1989 marked the last time that Mr. Hall will read this story, at least to the North Shore Morning Ex audience. After ten years as Headmaster, Mr. Hall has decided to resign his position.

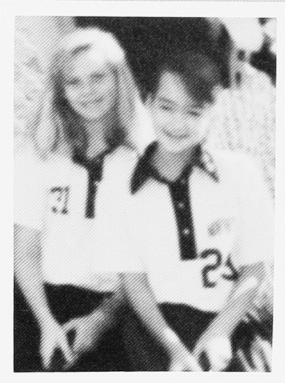

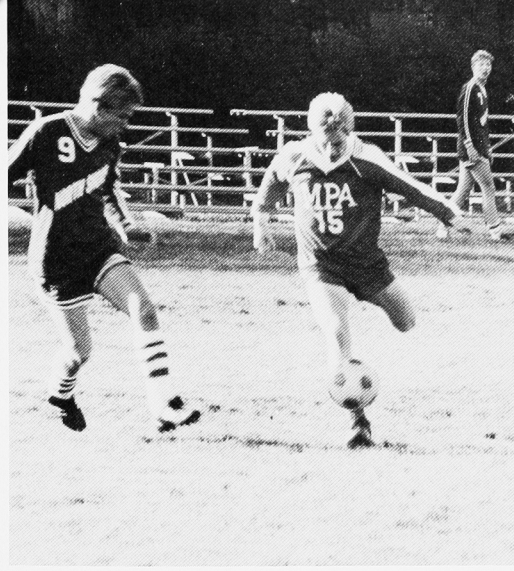

Looking back on the past ten years, it is easy to see all of the remarkable improvements and changes that Mr. Hall has brought to North Shore. He has improved the physical nature of the school by building the new library complex. During his term of office, alumni contributions have also increased, and the overall image of the school in the community has been greatly enhanced. Mr. Hall has been an extremely important part of the school for the past ten years, and he will certainly be missed. We wish him the best of luck in his future endeavors.

.....HOMECOMING '88!!!

Didn't we do one of those last year?

Homecoming 1988 was a true gala affair. The alumni-varsity field hockey game (go team!) was, as always, a spectacle to be seen. So was the annual Homecoming Football Game, a 19-8 loss to Alden-Hebron, albeit in a slightly different way. (Ahem.) There was a balloon launch, a parade and a formal dance (for the first time)-standard fare, perhaps, but very successful and heaps of amusement. Go Raiders. Overall, perhaps Laura Heinz best summed the day up by saying, "We were psyched to be us."

The 1988 Fall Show

AND NOW...THE DINING ROOM

This year's Fall Show, The Dining Room, was the result of hard work by cast members...(dot dot dot): Paula Castillo, Colm Davis, Peter Geyer, Laura Heinz, Tom Hilbink, Ciara McDonagh, Michaela "Lloyd" Murphy, and Alex Sargeson. The first show directed by Molly Burns and Jay Fry, The Dining Room was a great success. When asked about the show, Tom said, "This year's fall show was swell...I really had a super time, and I loved working with that terrific bunch of kids. Yay..." Peter commented, "It was a show." About the preparation of the show, Peter also said, "I did enjoy putting the show on. Also, I learned a deep, dark secret about Ciara but she'd kill me if I told you."

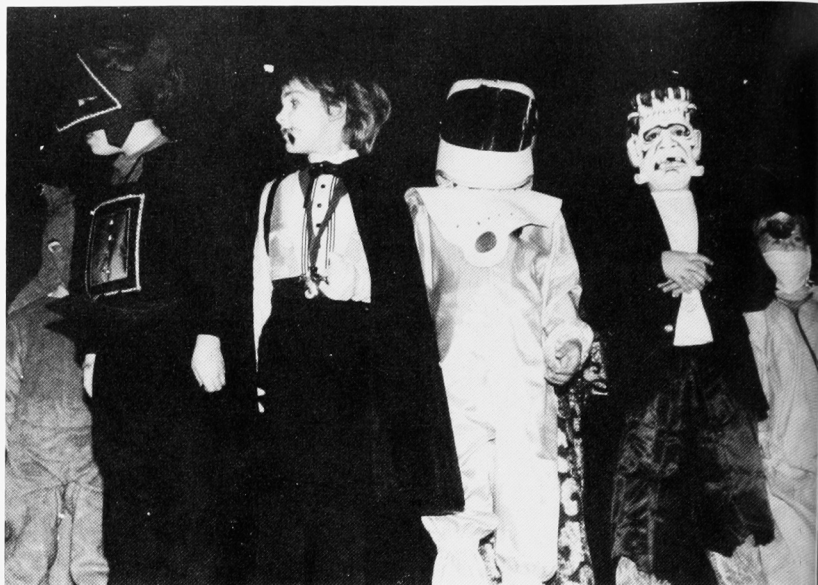

October 31 Plagued by Ghosts,

Monsters, and other dressed up People

Halloween this year was

VERY SCARY

as usual. What else can be said?! The Lower School and selected members of the Faculty and Middle and Upper Schools paraded on stage dressed up in costumes. Among the many wonderful costumes were political figures, monsters, cowboys, motorcycle riders, and even a jester. Needless to say there were no garbage bag creations.

Workday Proves Magical for All

Following tradition, this year's Workday activities involved a combination of work, play, service, and entertainment. Much to the chagrin of students, classes were held for the first two periods. After the first two classes, the Workday activities, which were planned by Mrs. Foster and the Workday committee, commenced. The activities began with meetings between the paired grades. Most of the remainder of the morning was occupied by raking leaves, the traditional highlight of Workday. The Seniors and their Kindergarten buddies also planted purple and white flower buds throughout the campus. After lunch, during which Ian Murphy and Tom Hilbink provided musical entertainment as DJs, the entire school attended a magic show. Then, everyone proceeded outdoors for the annual duck-duck-goose games. Finally, the Upper School departed on its community service projects, most of which involved raking the leaves at homes of the elderly. It certainly seemed that the day was filled with fun for everyone, from Seniors to Kindergarteners.

INTERIM. IT IS A BIG DEAL.

The faculty has always regarded Interim Week as a great opportunity for the student to explore educational opportunity outside the classroom. The student body explains it as all that and more: "Y'know, no homework, man." Some of the 'old standbys' were back this year, like Alcohol Awareness and Film Making. In addition, we had some new ideas: trips this year went to London and Paris, Washington and Florida. The Dollar Street Yearnal, the parody of The Diller Street Journal, caused some administration heads to turn. Another new interim, Cultural Expression In the Arts, called the nude scene in Hair the highlight of their interim. For those not interested in the group offerings, a variety of internships were available. Examples include Beth Cavanaugh's internship at the Art Institute and Tom Hilbink's photo essay of Paris. On December 6, the annual Interim Night presentations were held, with each group giving a display in the library.

Thanksgiving Warms Hearts of All

In the spirit of giving, this year's Thanksgiving concluded a week long food drive organized by the student council. Several carloads of canned goods were collected by students and faculty and were donated to the Acorn House for the homeless in Evanston. The celebration of Thanksgiving at school also included the annual Lower and Middle School Morning Exercise in the Diller Street Theater. This year, the Thanksgiving Morning Ex featured the famed author Laura Ingalls Wilder in a slide presentation. Throughout the Thanksgiving activities, a feeling of closeness and the spirit of Thanksgiving was shared by the whole school. After the Morning Ex ended, the entire school was dismissed for a long weekend, which was undoubtedly enjoyed by all.

YE OLD MADRIGAL FEAST

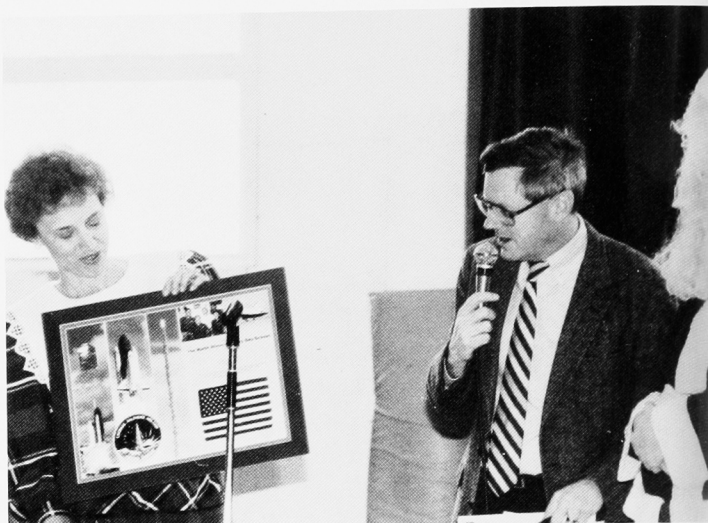

For the first time in many years, a new performing arts program was produced this year. On December 1, students in chorus and theater classes performed a madrigal feast in front of approximately thirty parents and teachers. At this feast, which took place in the activities room, medieval food was served by a variety of theater students in the guise of serfs and wenches. And let us not forget the entertainment (lest we yearbook serfs be guilty of heinous sin). Both Octavo, a small a capella group of eight, and the regular chorus sang a variety of medieval madrigals. In addition, cellist Wendy Warner and guitarist Nina Wallenburg, wife of music director Danny Warner Wallenberg, provided music for the feast. Of course, we cannot overlook the spectacular performance of Tom Hilbink as the court jester. Overall, it was a new, interesting experiment, and only time will tell if the Madrigal Feast will be repeated in the years to come.

Christmas 1988

Santa Visits NSCDS

1. Even Mrs. Lopas came in to see how our holiday party was going and to join in the holiday spirit. 2. This sibling got into the groove and made up his own dance to show his enthusiasm. 3. Santa, Kindergarteners and Seniors jammed to the "hokey-pokey." 4. One First Grader almost broke his neck while parachuting in the gym. 5. The Kazoo Players from Hell strut their stuff.

The Santa Claus party on December 16, 1988, the last day of school before a much-needed Christmas vacation, capped off a week of holiday events. The annual Santa Claus party featured Senior Frankie Ai as Master of Ceremonies and Senior Laura Heinz reading the traditional story "It was the night before Christmas." However, the highlight of the program must have been the appearance of Santa Claus, which, even though it is an annual occurrence, always delights and surprises the Lower School. This year's dances between the paired grades ranged from the traditional Senior-Kindergarten "hokey-pokey" to a more experimental "parachute" dance.

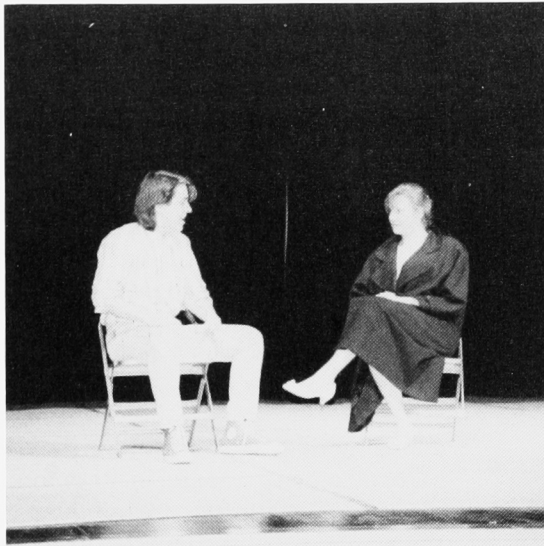

Earlier in the week, the Seniors gave their annual holiday party for the Kindergarten. The party included loads and loads of food, and all of the Seniors gave gifts to their Kindergarteners. In the words of Laura Heinz, "It was really, really nice to spend extra time with our kindergarteners."

On Tuesday, the Upper School, the Middle School, and the Faculty put on the annual holiday program. This year's program was highlighted by vocal and instrumental performances by the Upper School Chorus, Octavo, the Middle School Chorus, and the Faculty chorus. And we can't forget the musical performances and accompaniment by cellist Wendy Warner and others.

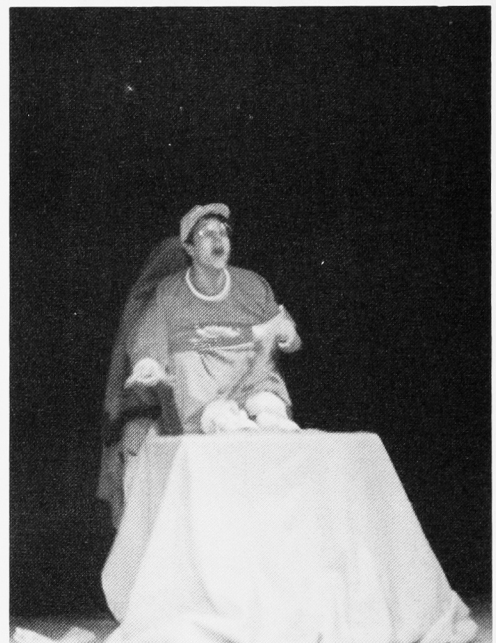

On Wednesday, the Lower School presented its own holiday program. This program featured each grade singing a variety of different songs. The Kindergarten sang its Jingle Bell medley to a standing ovation of Seniors.

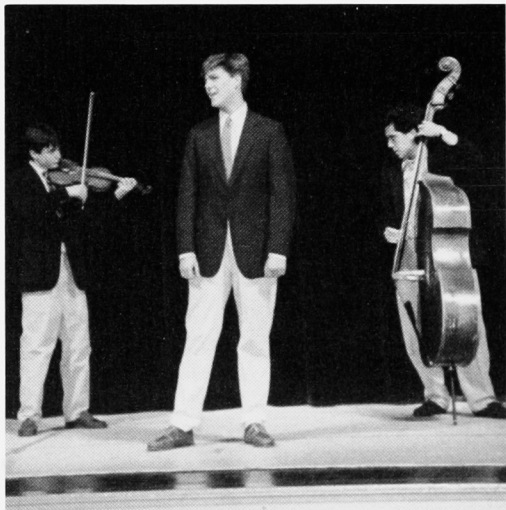

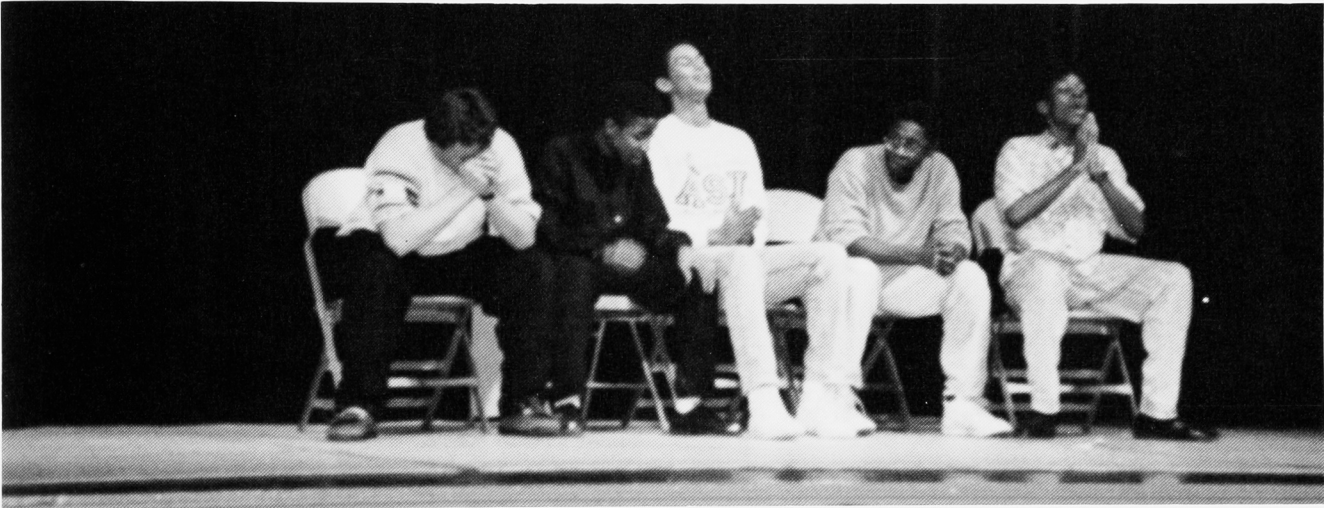

VAUDEVILLE WANTS YOU

Well, this year's Vaudeville took place as planned (to the surprise of some). Colm Davis, Laura Heinz, Ian P. Murphy and Peter Geyer made an encore performance as MCs to this year's eclectic collection of theatrical wahzoo. Chapin Hemphill's midget dressing brought a lot of us fond reminiscences of Innisfree '84, Day-O brought new meaning to the term "Huh?" and the band played on...and on...and on.

Morning Ex.

What can we say about Morning Ex? After hours of deliberation among the various members of the yearbook, we decided that this year of Morning Ex. can best be described by one word: TRASH. (We'll leave you to form your own interpretation of what this means; needless to say, there are many.) If you want a more detailed examination of this year's Morning Ex.'s (actually, there were a few that fell into the non-Trash category) we suggest you look at the pictures. It's certainly a lot easier than reading about it.

M.S. Football Team Wins Last Game

Although their records were not necessarily spectacular, the Middle School football players this year did the best they could in the few games they played. Coached by Jay Bach and Jim Deuble, the Middle School football players were divided into two teams, a Sixth and Seventh Grade team and an Eighth Grade team, each of which had its own schedule of games. At the end of the season, the teams redeemed themselves when the Sixth and Seventh Grade team beat Sacred Heart and, after losing twice, the Eighth Grade team finally beat Joseph Sears.

1. Jay looks on with amazement. Or is it amusement? 2. Here, Coach Bach clones himself so he can watch the play from the front and back at the same time (sorry Jim, we really know it's you). 3. Our Raiders are jeered by some creep who thinks he's a big deal in his white shoes.

Middle School Field Hockey Shines

Although this year's record of 1-3-3 doesn't look exceptional, Coach Edee Madsen thinks that the team may not have been too far from a 4-3 record. The team played well and improved enough so that Edee hopes that next year's Eighth Graders will be able to win most of their games. She also believes that the incoming Freshmen will continue the recent tradition of dominating our league in high school field hockey.

bottom: Melanie Schiff, Jenny Arrington, Amy Marinacci, Vanessa Price, Seema Sharma, Jenny Edidin, Margaret Urban, Kourtney Krom, Katie Whittlesey, Laura Fifield, Marnie Wienke. 2nd: Lisa Rosen, Betty Fisher. 3rd: Jennie Caldwell, Alison Flint, Carolyn Passino, Hope Cristol, Liz Peterson, Katie Epmeier, Judy Meadows, Claire Pinkert, Megan McGrath, Angeline Brown, Maggie Marzano, Margit Zjolnay.

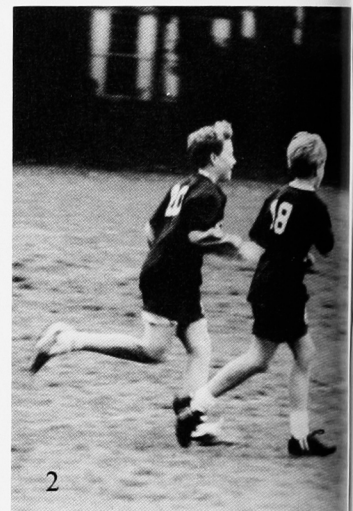

1. There's nothing like an exhilarating day of hard field hockey to sweat off all of your tensions. 2. Edee is trying to discourage Middle Schoolers from nailing opponents' heads during their follow-through. 3. Joseph Sears fashion queens strut their stuff as our ever-loving Raiders shout back.

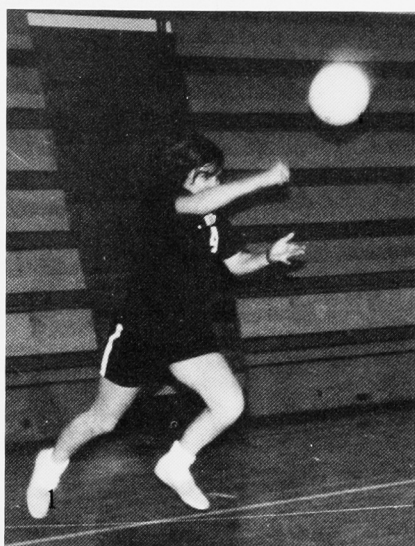

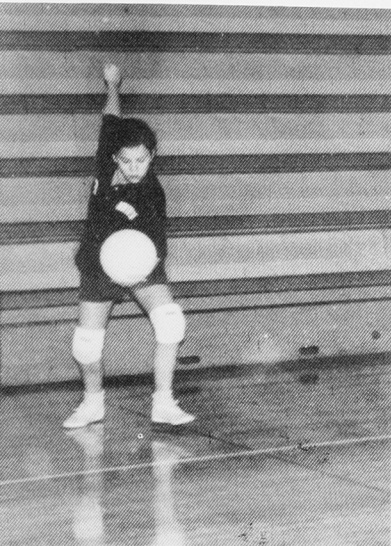

An Inconclusive Season

It proved difficult to get much information about the Middle School soccer season this year. One coach, Bob Zelle, was unavailable for comment, but Peter Braverman expressed the opinion, "It might have been a better season if we had played some games." Nearly all of the games were cancelled due to rain or some such trivial complication stemming from the Wrath of God. The games that the team did play—all two or three of them—were good, giving the team a good (if brief) feeling about itself.

1. The opposing team's defensemen wonder collectively why our man is throwing them the ball. 2. Hey, number 20, did you hear the one about the snail and the powerboat.

M.S. Volleyball Keeps on Truckin'

Middle School Volleyball surprised itself this year. Even though the team lost a lot of players to last year's graduating eighth graders, they had a relatively successful season. Anne Wheat commented, "I think that for having only three players who'd played for more than a year, we had a really good season." Coach Mary Pat Hepp commented that she was pleased with the team's progress.

Brooke Bakalar, Melanie Lewis, Aisha Taylor, Laura Leahy, Jessica Bakalar, Angela Richardson, Jill Kiphart, Kim Hedge, Anne Wheat, Alexandra Roginsky, Kateen Brennan, Anokhi Dahlia.

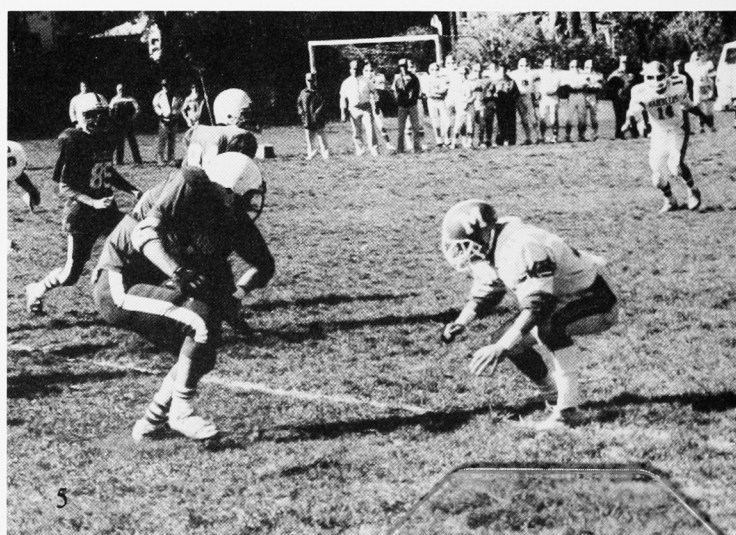

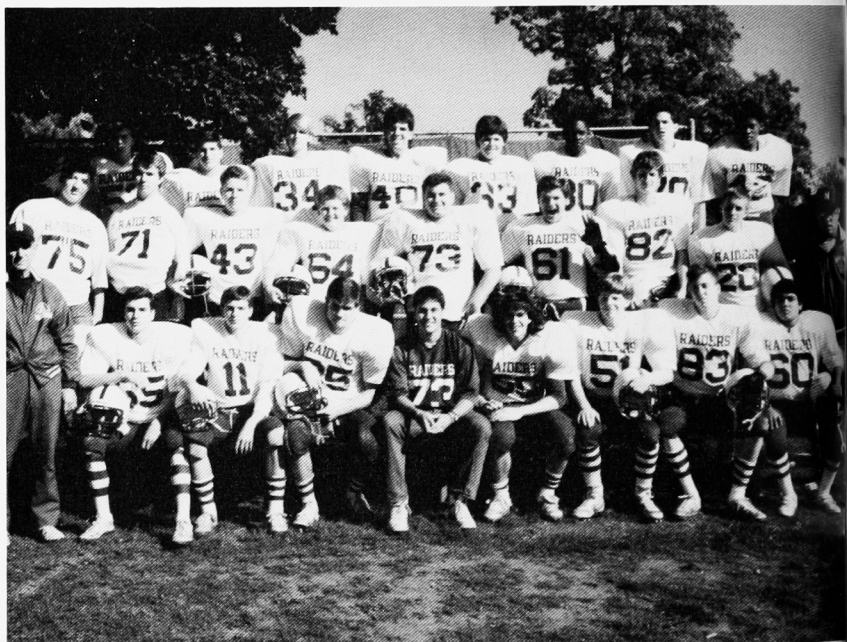

1. There will no no, repeat no jokes in the 1989 Mirror about levitating volleyballs. 2. We repeat: no floating volleyball jokes. Not even when they're standing around it in a circle.

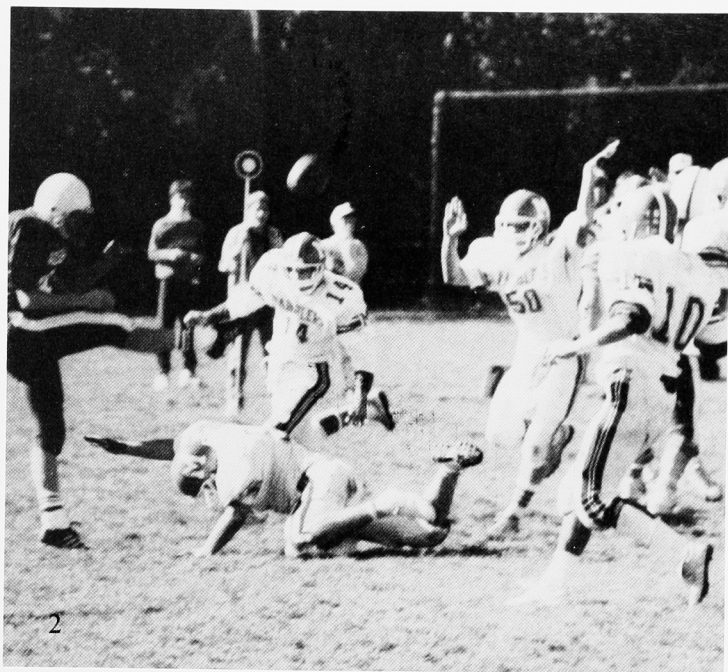

Football Team has High Points

In addition to losing an irreplaceable number of last year's Seniors to college, this year's football team was unfortunate enough to lose four Varsity players due to injury, resulting in a season record of 2-6. Even so, the two victories that the team did earn were smashing ones. In the victory against Northwestern Military, the Raiders vanquished their opponents by scoring 28 points without letting them score a single point. In the words of Senior Rob Zgonena, who was able to play in only two games because of injury, "The games I played in were awesome, including Northwestern Military, and I'm glad I was able to give the team some help." Contrary to rumors in the beginning of the season, Coach Mac McCarty will not be leaving the school. In his words, "I am going to stay as long as they let me!"

1. Why does the quarterback seem frozen? 2. Soccer convert Jeff Snyder demonstrates his kicking ability, to the dismay of the Mooseheart defense. 3. Did you ever wonder what's going through his head just before getting crunched by four Raiders. 4. An annual highlight of the NSCDS-Mooseheart game is the "Pile on Peter" at the end of the first half. 5. Mid-game sumo wrestling, though not very well-known, is interesting to watch.

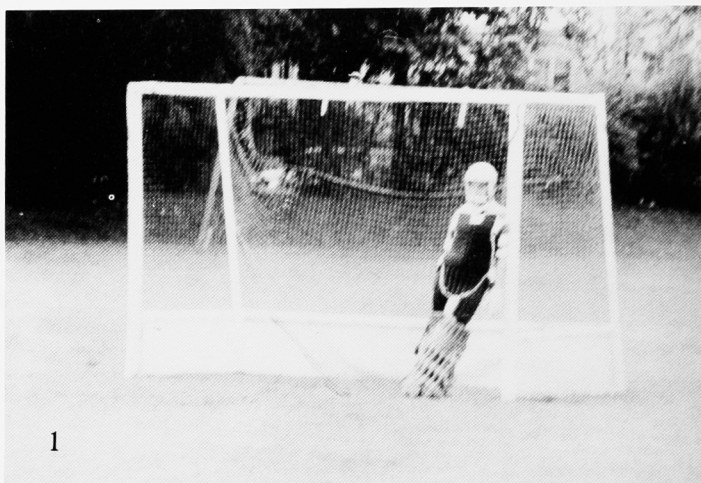

Field Hockey Repeats as Conference Champs

Once again, this year's field hockey team won the conference championship after a long season of hard work. The season began in the heat of August, when the entire team went to Field Hockey Camp in Michigan. According to one participant, going as a team brought everyone closer together and helped all of the players work better, not only individually, but as part of a team. Because there are only eleven field hockey teams in the state, the field hockey team had to play several public high schools outside of its conference, most of which were much larger than NSCDS. Overall, the team record for in-conference play was 7-1.

bottom: Yookyung Kim, Bela Agrawal, Dina Healy, Amy Jacobs. 2nd: Liz Ross, Kris Gardiner, Aisling McDonagh, Peggy Smith, Navarra Rodrieguez, Laura Heinz, Alison Plauche, Ashley Hemphill, Gretchen Theders, Stefani Tomaras. absent: Amy Stratton, Liz Zahn.

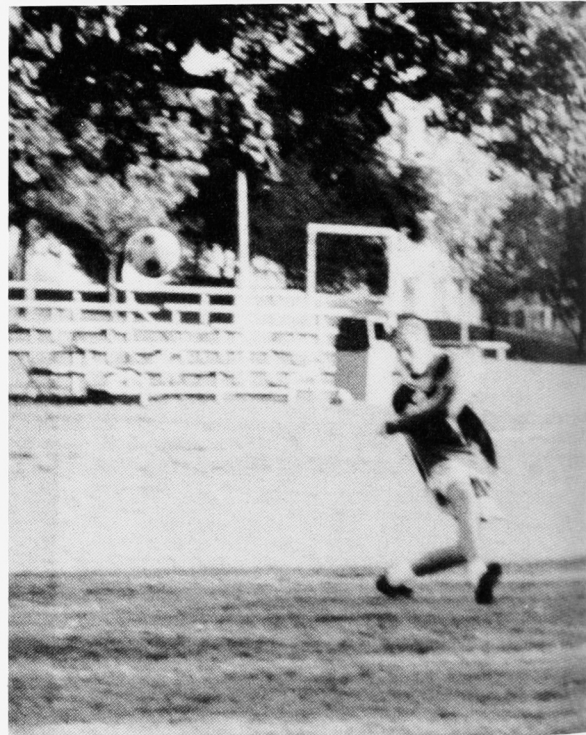

1. This year's invigorating season was just chock full of exciting highlights (at least the goalie thought so). 2. Navarra obliterated the game ball as Peggy growls behind. 3. Watch Ashley dance around the ball. 4. Seriously, Peggy just didn't photograph well this season.

U.S. SOCCER DOES IT AGAIN

UPPER SCHOOL SOCCER, perfectly honestly, didn't have its best season in recent memory this year, going by the numbers. However, this year's team fought a good fight, and really did walk away with a good feeling in our collective gut. A sense of camaraderie developed—often touted as a main point of sports at North Shore—and, according to one team member, “I can't think of anybody on the team who would argue with the idea that we really did have a better time than most of the teams that we played.” Thanks are particularly due to our co-captains, Frankie Ai and Jeff Snyder, a pair of really good players and really good leaders who tried to keep a semblance of sanity over the team's demeanor, as well as the team coaches, Jim Deuble and Jim Gramentine. According to Ian Murphy, “And on behalf of Frankie, Jeff and myself I'd like to offer a heartfelt thanks to North Shore after four years of US Soccer (MS as well, but we won't mention it).”

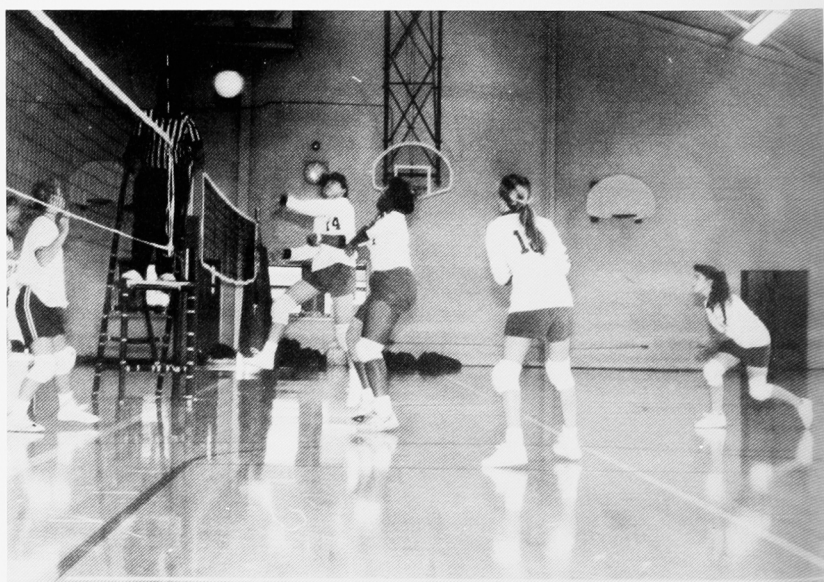

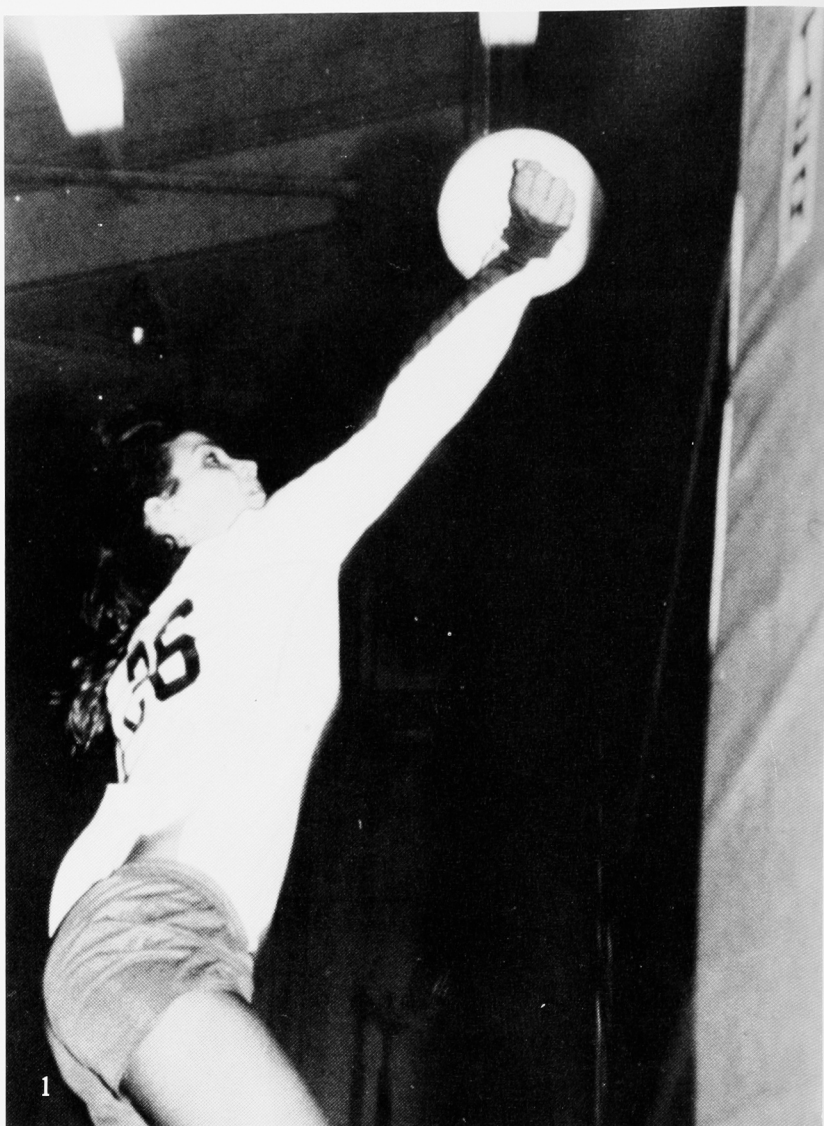

1. The dreaded moment occurred—Morgan Park brought in its secret weapon, Freddy “Stumpy” Lipton. 2. Two soccer players run down the field, arm-in-arm. 3. Despite appearances, Frankie does not normally stand this way.

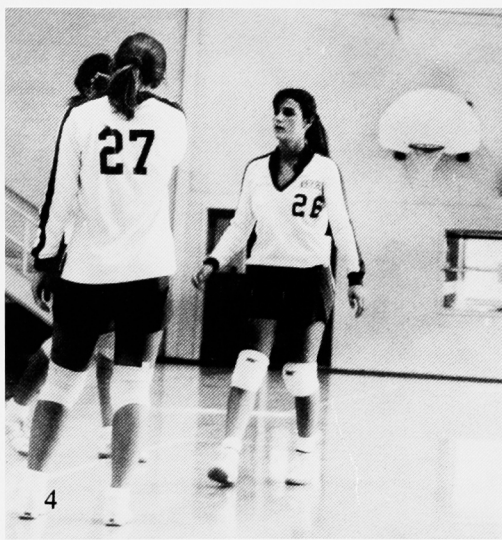

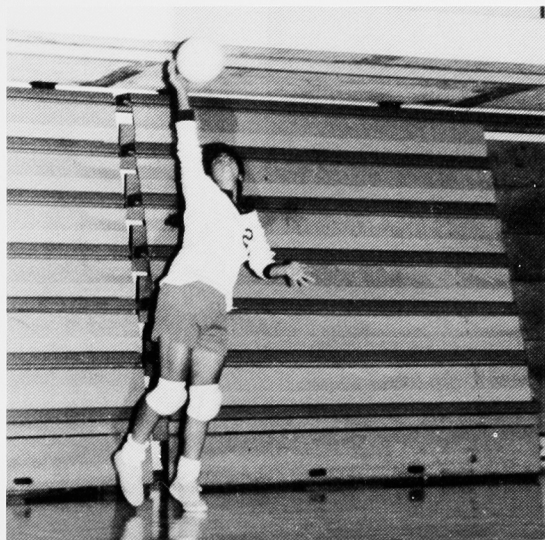

U.S. VOLLEY- BALL! HM BOY!

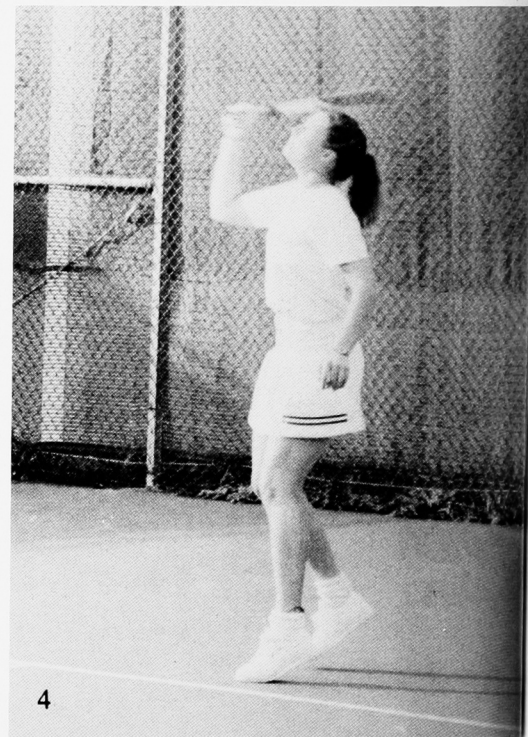

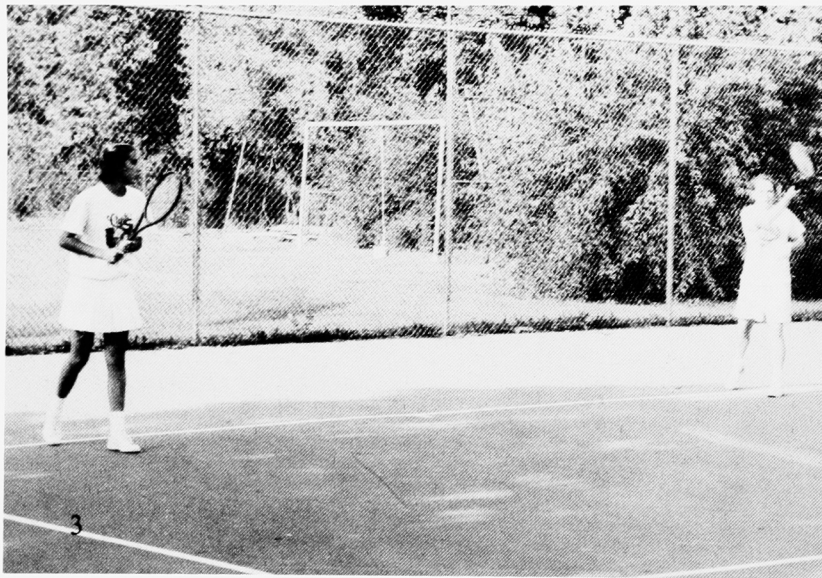

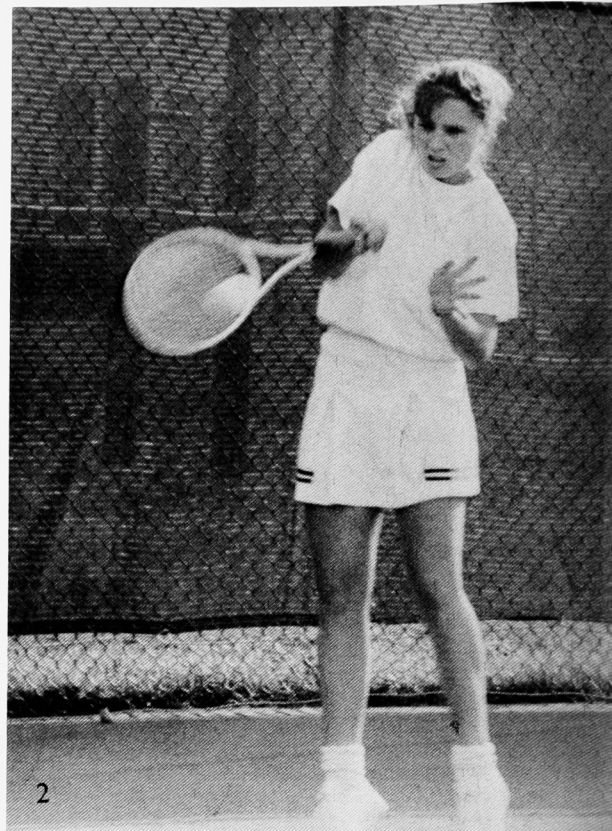

Upper School Volleyball played, in the words of Bridget Zieserl, "a really good season. Even though we lost a lot of players toward the end of the season we worked really well together as a team." They won the conference title for the second year in a row. The team even went to regionals where, because of the loss of key players and mental fatigue they were knocked out early in the competition.

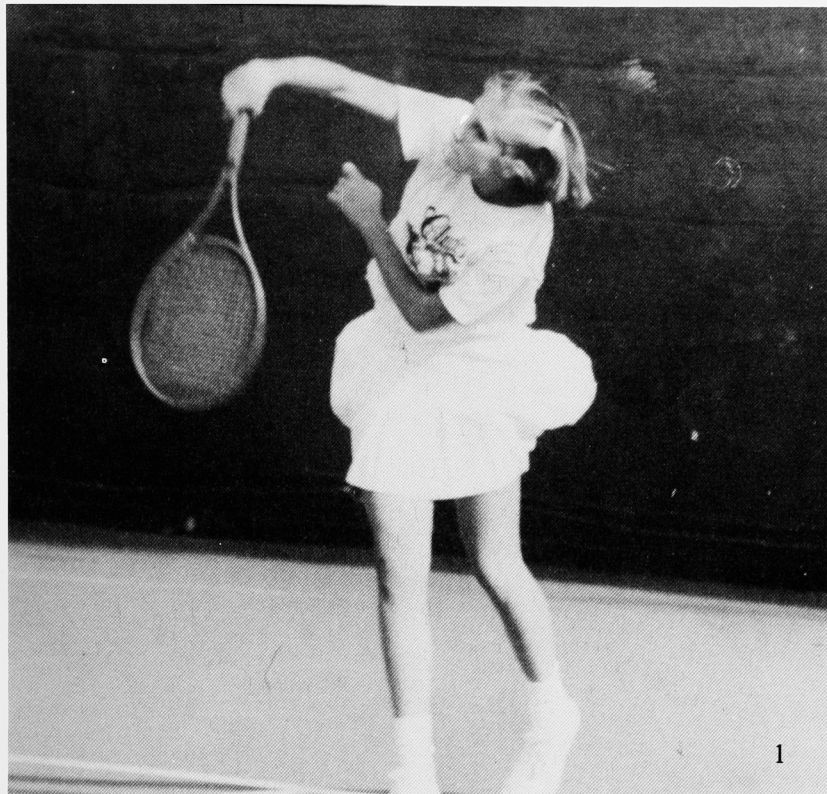

bottom: Nicole Rousseau, Leslie Dickey, Chelby Hobson, Rachel Rosenthal. 2nd: Sophie Kolehmainen, Missy Wemstrom, Le Ha Quach, Le Trinh Quach, Joanne Avery, Anne-Lise Guisset. 3rd: Aline Tissot, Estelle Campos, Heather Axelrod, Alecia Hampton. absent: Bridget Zieserl, Patty Campos.

1. This could be a floating volleyball caption but due to yearbook policy it is not. 2. We reiterate: no cute floating volleyball captions. Not even when we see floating team members. 3. Unbeknownst to the players, an Asian spy posing as a bystander and an American spy posing as a referee listen to their every word. 4. Hmmm....due to perspective, Bridget appears as tall as the basketball net on the far wall of the gym! (It's getting late and it's really hard to write captions for some of these.)

Upper School Tennis

Led by co-captains Jan Reed and Kathy Stephan, the tennis team surpassed all expectations and had its best season in recent years. At the beginning of the season, Coach Jan Migaki expected that this year would be a rebuilding one. However, with the addition of several new members to the team, the final record left North Shore fifth in the conference. Understandably, Coach Migaki was very pleased, saying, "This year's team has been the best in eight years, and next year's team should be strong."

bottom: Bridget McManus, Robyn Goldman. 2nd: Sarah Crawford, Kate Kehoe, Ellen Kelly, Charlotte Fraser. 3rd: Jan Reed, Kathy Stephan.

1. Kate Kehoe displays her serving form, but where has the ball gone? 2. Don't shy away from the ball, Kathy. 3. The picture speaks for itself. Sort of. 4. Actually, Charlotte is aiming at low-flying birds.

Upper School Boys Basketball

(a.k.a. Jason)

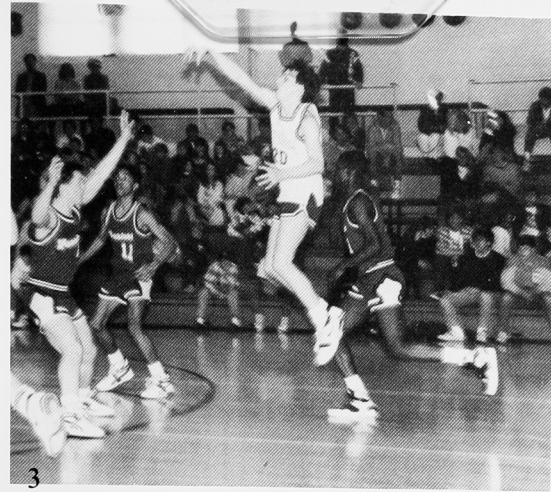

The Thrill of Victory, The Agony of Defeat. This year's basketball team experienced a bit more of the latter than the former in compiling its 10-14 record. Led by Jason Rosenberg, who led the state in scoring and who finished within five points of setting the all-time Illinois State scoring record, the team exceeded expectations despite the inexperience of a team with only two returning lettermen. Rosenberg packed four years of summer basketball camp and a lifetime of playground games into one season and came out with the most incredible individual record North Shore has ever seen. Despite the fact that only Cy Oelerich joined Rosenberg in averaging in double figures, the team remained competitive and provided Juniors Andy Wood and Mike Israel with valuable experience. While next year's team will certainly miss Rosenberg's 43-points per game average, Wood and Israel hope to lead a more balanced attack with the help of this year's JV team.

1: A pretty standard basketball picture, except for Nick. Doesn't Nick look kind of funny? 2: It's not all that often that two teams decide collectively to make sure the ceiling has been recently cleaned. 3: Unfortunately, Jason's not in this picture. We're sorry. We did put Cy in, though, and he's okay too, sometimes. 4: Oh, Great White, please deliver unto us the sacred orb.

Varsity: bottom: Zack Oelerich, Andy Wood, Al Lopez, Mike Israel. 2nd: Coach Mac McCarty, Steve Tepper, Jason Rosenberg, Scott Koral, David Cohen, Cy Oelerich.

JV: bottom: Danny Christopher, ? Ghazi, Rob McClung, Owen Gerst. 2nd: Coach Jay Bach, Warner Saunders, Zack Oelerich, Karsten Rutten, Danny Beider.

Upper School Girls' Basketball

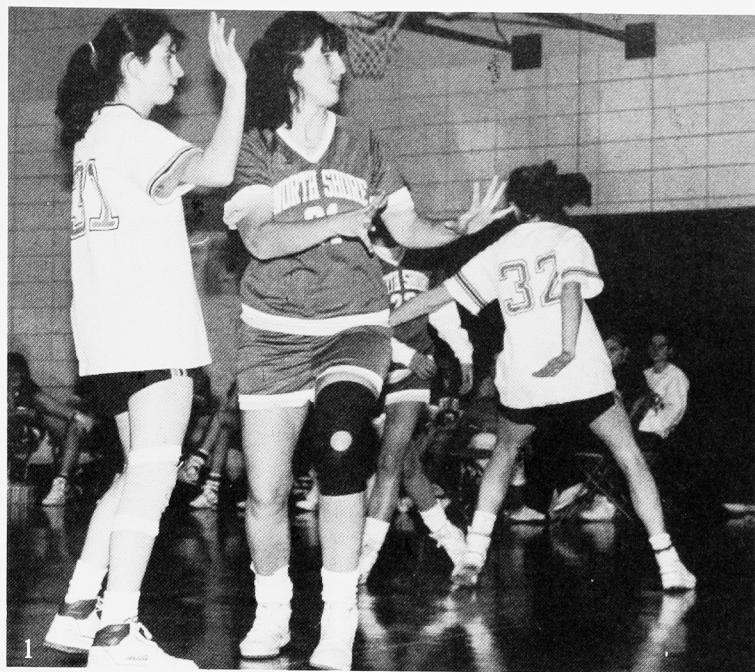

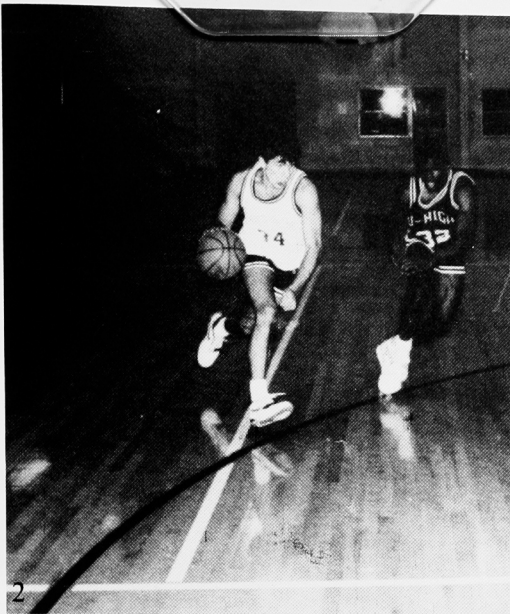

The Varsity team had a record of 15-4. They were 12-2 in the league and finished in first place; something all of the players were proud of. Despite being plagued by a few Varsity player injuries, the team had a great season. Patty Campos and Heather Axelrod made the league All-Star Team. The Junior Varsity also had an excellent record of 10-6, and they ended the season being 9-5 in the league. This record placed them second in the league. The practice that this year provided the J.V. team with will be an asset to having a winning team next year.

1: You do the Hokey Pokey, and you turn yourself around, and you, oh, never mind. 2: Though generally discouraged from using her telekinetics during the games, Ellen's not always good with rules. 3: Tra la la, youse guys. Tra la. 4: Soccer was also clearly in vogue this Upper School season.

Varsity: bottom: Aline Tissot, Dina Healy, Jan Reed, Heather Axelrod, Peggy Smith. 2nd: Paula Castillo, Coach Jim Deuble, Estelle Campos, Bridget Zieserl, Ellen Kelly, Patty Campos.

Middle School Government

An Attempt at True Democracy

Rather than hold small, closed meetings whose results never seem to get passed on to the rest of the student body, Middle Schoolers decided to try a different system this year. They held town meetings in the Diller Street Theater which the whole Middle School attended. Representatives of each class would present the issues, anything from homework to test taking to social events, and the school would discuss them as a whole. In this way, everybody knew what was going on and was able to voice his opinions. Overall, reaction to these new town meetings has been positive, and it seems likely that they will be continued in future years.

Spirit Committee Tries to Psyche School

Although Spirit Committee got off to a late start this year, they more than made up for it by organizing a lot of school activities towards the end of the year. Things such as a limbo contest and a poster drawing contest spiced up several of the home basketball games. There was a new idea this year in bringing the whole school together for activities. Every grade was divided into two teams, a Purple team and a White team. Games would then be played against opposing teams, first between the two teams of the same grade, and later between larger teams made up of all the classes. This was fun! Overall, Spirit Committee Chairman Ellen Kelly said that "Spirit Committee had a lot of fun planning fun things for the school to do. I am really looking forward to next year!" Good luck, Ellen.

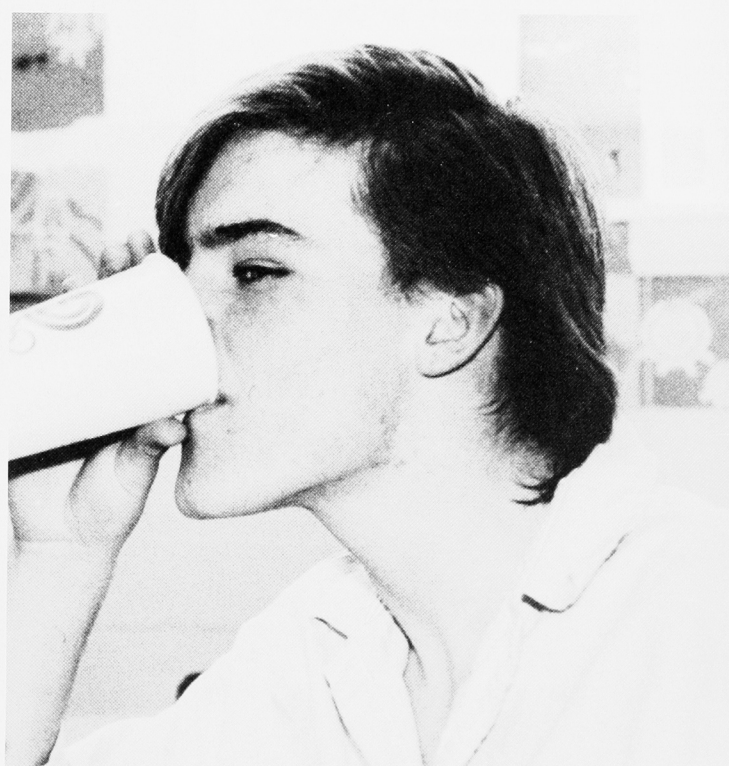

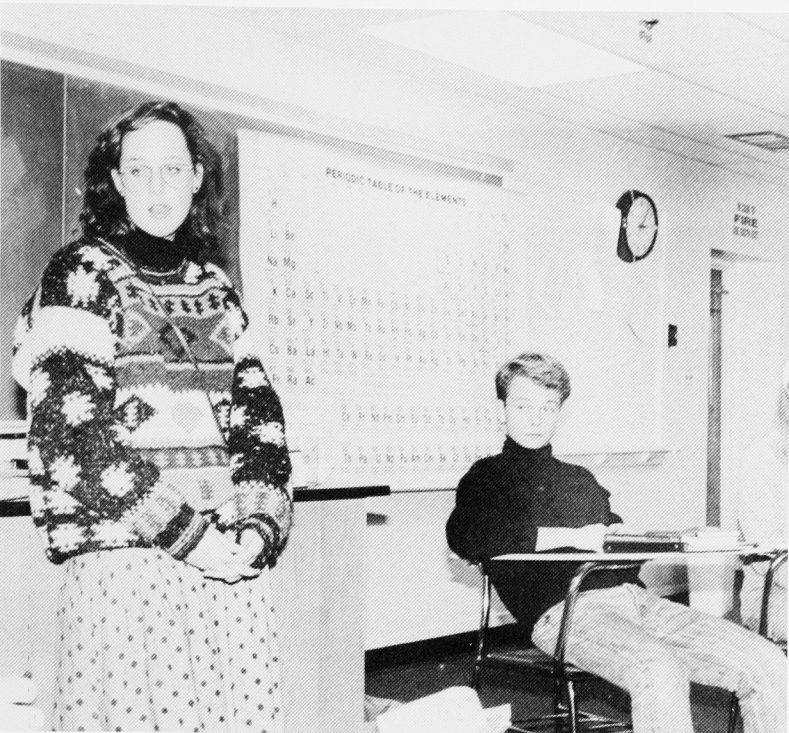

Student Council Forms Committees

Led by Senior Class President Laura Heinz, many of the Council's achievements were accomplished by individual committees (supposedly, anyway). Much of Student Council's time was spent engaged in an all out war against trash. Early in the year, student council decided to place recycling bins in several locations in the school. The material collected in these bins was taken to the Winnetka Recycling Center. Among the other things that the Council worked on were parking lot congestion problems and a study hall release policy for underclassmen. New to the Council was a representative for North Shore's first Students Against Drunk Driving chapter. Led by Senior Alex Lopez, the SADD chapter has developed significant student and faculty support. With additional representatives from the Diller Street Journal and the Mirror, this year's Council was one of the largest ever.

Live, From the Twilight Zone...it's STAGECREW!

In ancient times, hundreds of years ago, there lived an anicent race...the Raw Recruits. Frankie Ai, the last Raw Recruit left, mysteriously died in a fit of laughter when the Mirror interviewed him about this year's stage crew. That's right, an era of stage crew has ended. An era that all are sad to see end.

As for the new stage crew, it is slowly developing. Headed up by underclassmen new to the crew scene, this year's crew ran the productions with a little help from the drama faculty. To facilitate building the sets and setting up the show, our crew also got a boost from several theatrical professionals. After losing the last Raw Recruit, this year was a much needed recovery and rebuilding year. What lies ahead is hard to predict, but next year should be a great one for the crew.

This year's choral groups fell into several different categories. One group was the chorus class, which met daily throughout the entire year. Although the primary emphasis of the class involved practicing singing and preparing for choral concerts, Mr. Wallenberg also taught the fundamentals of music composition.

Another group, Octavo, gathered to sing as an extracurricular activity. Also directed by Mr. Wallenberg, Octavo sang at the Holiday Program and, if you were lucky enough to be able to obtain tickets, at the Madrigal Feast.

A final singing group was the chorus of this year's Gilbert and Sullivan performance, The Mikado. The Opera Chorus met several times a week after school for several months before the show.

Diller Street Journal Scoops Stories

The Diller Street Journal had a great, solid start this year. Having just received its own Macintosh Desktop Publishing System, the newspaper staff was able to publish issues on a regular (almost) monthly schedule. In spite of the long hours that the editors had to spend on each paper, the year was not without fun. The new Introductory Journalism class assisted Editor-in-chief Rob Zgonena and the other editors by contributing articles on a regular basis, particularly to the news section of the paper. This year's Diller Street Journal was successful enough to inspire a group of dedicated journalists to make a parody issue of the paper.

The Yearbook People

Who are the yearbook people? Who are these obnoxious Seniors who constantly make popcorn, rubber cement anything and everything to the wall, and annoy Mr. Conroy, Mrs. Howard and the rest of the faculty with their loud music and boisterous conversations. What kind of person would work late at night, during vacation, and on weekends, just to make deadlines. You probably think we're crazy, and we probably agree with you. However, for all our insanity, we do accomplish something: the production of this yearbook, which, if we do say so ourselves, is pretty good, no, better than that. With this in mind, let's introduce all of the members of this year's Mirror staff.

"She's psyched to be her." That's probably the best way to describe Layout Editor Laura Heinz. One of the originators of this year's new art concept, semi-organic rubber cement wall art, Laura brought, along with her amazing (usually) layout skills, her own language to the yearbook. At first no one could understand her cry of "Where's my Yahoo?" (By the way, what is a Yahoo? No, Mr. Conroy, we don't think she is referring to the ones in Gulliver's Travels). However, at some point during the year, several staff members were startled to learn that they understood which tool she was asking for. Needless to say, the prospect that someone else understands Laura's personal language is very frightening, and it is far too early to determine how much each of the staff members has been permanently affected, or should I say damaged, by associating with her.

Then there is the mystical presence of Ian Murphy, co-copy editor. Perhaps, mystical is not quite the correct word; transient or disappearing might be better. A man to whom deadline is a new vocabulary word, Ian had the ability to write incredibly creative copy, when we could corral him into the office. We think he might be suffering from the Tanna Schwarz anti-Mirror office syndrome, but we really aren't sure. It is possible that he has just been busy during the entire year doing little things like producing and starring in plays.

As for Rob Zgonena, the other copy editor, he was somewhat more dependable. In spite of the fact that he had to juggle his newspaper editorial responsibilities with job as his copy editor, he was still able to get his copy in on time (relatively). Hopefully, he hasn't made too many enemies in the Middle and Lower School along the way. Rob was one of the more gluttonous members of this year's staff, having a special desire for Hawaiian Kettle Potato Chips and heavily-salted popcorn.

And now we turn to Thom (not Tom) Hilbink, the photography editor. Or, as some liked to call him, the "Bloody (or not-so-bloody, depending on the day) Turnip." While a creative photographer, he seemed to enjoy scaring the rest of the staff by waiting until the last possible day before the deadline before developing pictures. Towards the end of the year, he decided to end his self-inflicted masochism and get other people to help him with taking and developing pictures.

Business Manager Tracy Moore has taken the additional role of rubber cement artist-in-residence. Early in the year, Tracy alienated the faculty with her very tactful scheduling of class, organization, and team pictures. She was also our liaison with "those other photographers from Evanson" and their representative, the infamous Cathy. She was known to come screaming into the yearbook office, trying to hide from Seniors with questions about their Senior pictures or people asking questions about ads. Overall, though, she did play an essential role in the yearbook, as she was always willing to help out in the inevitable crunch before a deadline.

The Head Honcho, Main Man, or Editor n' chief as some like to call him (some of us more than others) is a strange ranger. Secretly he hides his joy of gluing things to walls, his passion for popcorn, and most of all his desires to mess up Laura's clean desk. Reading his undecipherable messages he calls notes was always quite an accomplishment. He also seems to have this strange attraction to the Xerox machine where we found him making many a copy of his face, which must be a side affect of spending so many odd hours within the depths of the office (which by the way has no windows to let in the light of the outside world). Well, that's it for the Editors. That's probably about the best description that we can give for such a bunch of crazy, rubber cement sniffing Seniors. There is, perhaps, at least one other person worthy of mention, Beth "Fats" Cavanaugh. Beth was our all-around Junior yearbook assistant/slave. In spite of her strange eating habits, she was a welcome addition to the staff, especially in the deadline cruches when we needed someone for dittoing and cropping. Good luck next year, Fats.

So there we are. The yearbook people. We may be nuts, but we ARE the yearbook.

In Senior Kindergarten I Learned...

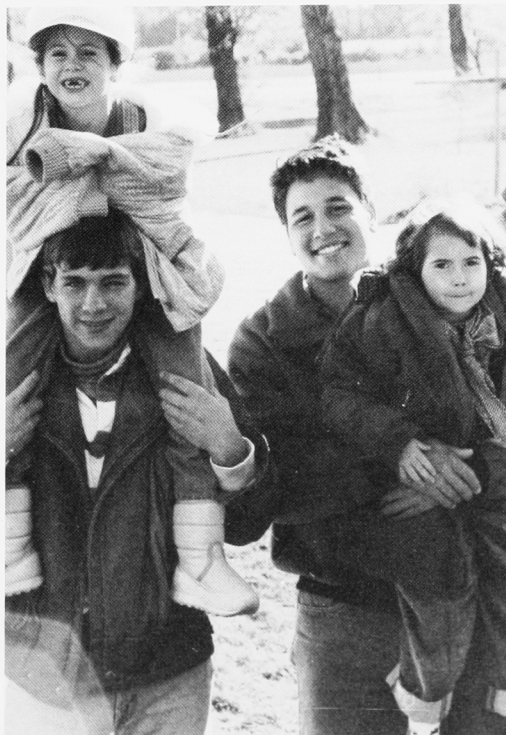

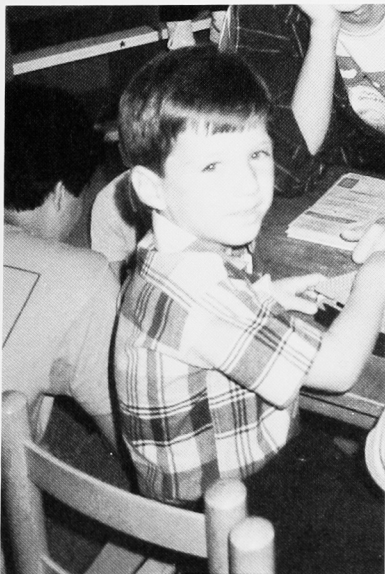

to fold paper
to write my name the school way to tie my shoes
to draw with chalk on paper to read
to play in the backroom that guns and weapons are not to come to school to zip my coat
to write numbers to 10,040
to write lowercase letters to be cool and stay in school that in America, you don't have to wear a uniform.
to do jumping jacks
to go on field trips to kiss (Ed's note: ?)
to clean up to sit down and behave at lunchtime
NOT to hit.

I like SK because there is no school on Sundays.

I like music, art, science, computers and buying lunch.

I like morning ex.

The First Grade

Memories of this year's class include happy days with good friends.

To the First Graders themselves, 1988-89 was:

- Having dinosaurs roam the room and creating exciting books about them.

- Having the Post Office be the busiest place in the room. With everybody writing to each other, it was fun to be able to read notes- a new skill.

- The Police Station registering all of the students and keeping order in the room. The Hospital took care of all the emergencies with its 21 doctor and nurse staff. The Travel Agency helped to make many trip plans.

- Having many of our adventures recorded in our own books which were highlighted at a Publisher's Party for parents and friends.

- Reporting on one of our favorite places. Our parents brought in slides and treats that often helped to describe the places and lifestyles that we liked best.

The Second Grade

BOSS FOR A WEEK

- If I were Boss on MONDAY I would get my allowance without doing any chores (Laura Hunt) and NOT go to my piano lessons (Sarah Martin) and have Sustained Silent Reading all day! (Stacey Goldman)
- If I were Boss on TUESDAY I would do whatever I wanted and the animals would clean up for us (Cristina Gerstman) and play Nintendo for 24 hours a day (Rajiv Patel) and have the choice of any horse I wanted to ride! (Eliza Scully)
- If I were Boss on WEDNESDAY I would make my teachers do my homework (Annie Cavanaugh) and eat all the frozen yogurt I wanted (Wick DeYoung) and wear my mom's makeup! (Alison Leslie)
- If I were Boss on THURSDAY I would make the whole class, except me, do jumping jacks all day (Kate Hutchins) and stay in gym with Jay Bach for four hours (Dan Snower) and have no homework (Peter Deitrick) and make my dog eat 15 cups of dog food and get his bone and give it to me! (Philip Dimon)
- If I were boss on FRIDAY I would make the teachers do all my homework (Samantha Darnell) and make my dad clean my room and stay up late watching Beauty and the Beast while Mom went to bed early (Alysoun Kegel) and have no reading (Brian MacArthur)
- If I were Boss on SATURDAY I would fire the President (Eleanor Shaw) and play Nintendo as long as I wanted (Jon Campbell) and not have school (Brett Ferguson) and have activity time all day long (Eyal Wallenberg)
- If were Boss on SUNDAY I would have no homework (James Mesic) and have all the teachers clean their own rooms (Emily Sola) and make my mom and sister work and clean the yucky sinks (Lindsay Hedge) and make me Boss for everyday! (Scott Richards)

The Third Grade

In social studies, we learned about Illinois. Some special trips highlighted our study. We learned about Illinois history from visits to the Mitchell Indian Museum, a "dig" at the Field Museum and a tour of the Chicago Historical Society.

We had a special tour of the State of Illinois Building to learn about our government and modern Chicago architecture. We continued to focus on architectural growth in this area from the early log and sod houses to the famous prairie style of architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright.

In our effort to learn about Illinois resources and technology, we paid a memorable visit to the Fermi Nuclear Accelerator in Batavia. We were most honored with a private lecture by Dr. Leon Lederman, who is a Nobel Prize winner in Physics.

We really know how to create our own fun! At Halloween, we constructed "Creepy Critters Cave" in one third of our classroom. We invited all of the other Lower School grades for "frightening tours." Around the Christmas holiday we built and decorated our own gingerbread houses. We put them all together to make a winter village and invited the whole Lower School for a visit.

For Martin Luther King Day we told the whole school about the rights of the people in our Bill of Rights Rap.

The Fifth Grade

In their own words, the Fifth Grade's year began with a celebration of the Olympics. In addition, they studied countries around the world and chased Carmen San Diego through them. They studied Japan for a good portion of the year, focusing in particular on Japanese food and art. One thousand paper cranes graced their room. After flying above our heads for a good portion of the year, they sent them to Japan with their best wishes. Their studies took them back in time to ancient Greece, where they captured the drama and color of the time by making puppets and writing myths. "Overall," noted one student, "the Olympics enthralled and the food enticed all."

MIDDLE SCHOOL

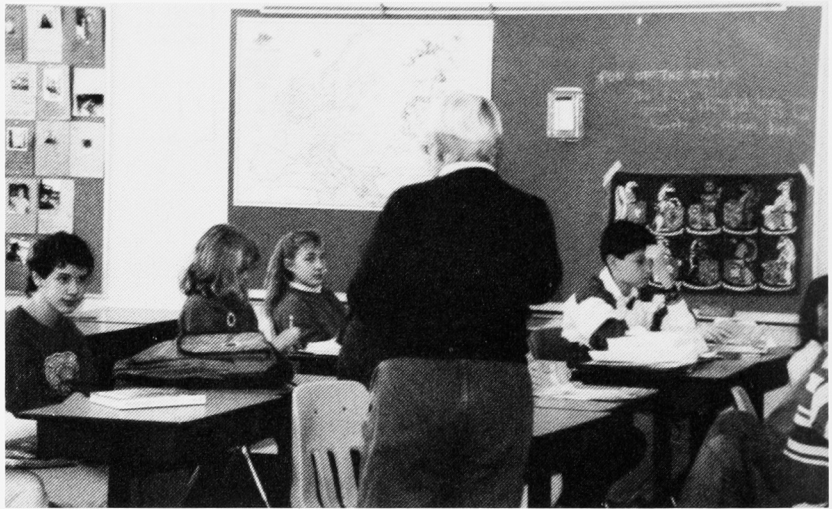

MIDDLE SCHOOL

SIXTH GRADE HAS MORE FUN THAN IS HUMANLY POSSIBLE

Football, field hockey, soccer and volleyball. Music, art and drama. Homework, homework, and homework. Notecards and field trips. Notecards, field trips, and top it off with a test or two.

Finally winter break. Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the classroom, HOMEWORK! Everyone's tan turned pale. Suddenly we discovered a hidden source of refueling. Spring break to the rescue... We returned to the classroom and again we found HOMEWORK.

Between all of the homework we did have fun. Our field trips to the Art Institute, plays and Indiana. Our first grade buddies, the Renaissance dinner and socials. The new people aren't new anymore and the year is over!

The Seventh Grade

The seventh grade year has been one of energy and fun, experiment and accomplishment, learning and incredible warmth. In October we went to Hobson's farm in southern Illinois. We ate home-cooked meals in an 1820s farm house, swung from a 300-year-old oak tree, and watched Harold and Zeke split logs. We learned about Indian culture, studied astronomy and took nature walks.

Time spent with our second grade buddies has provided high points all year long--apple picking and making apple head dolls; doing the Thanksgiving assembly and book drive; sharing family histories; getting together for storytelling and other activities. We love our second graders!

We went to plays like Animal Farm and The Jungle Book and participated in our own scenes from Shakespeare. Whenever possible, we made food a part of our class projects.

Other highlights we won't forget include Science Fair and the Middle School Show. It isn't always easy being a seventh grader, but this year was undoubtedly one of the best...

Senior Prophecies

Rolling Stone Reporter Ian P. Murphy was last seen sharing a bottle of Thunderbird at Exit with none other than P.M.R.C. maven Tipper Gore. The couple was listening to the new WASP album.

At the 10 year reunion, much to everyone's surprise, John Anton showed up in a macaroni necklace given to him by one of his beloved kindergarten students.

Frankie Ai's new Saturday morning T.V. show, Frankie's Pun House, has given Peewee's Playhouse some serious competition.

Dedicated to keeping the the public abreast of the latest developments in weight loss, Liz Zahn has recently published her new book, How to Reduce Weight over the Holidays.

Professional Stunt man Cyrus "mighty mite" Oelerich attributes his successful career to four years of playing basketball at North Shore.

Jason Rosenberg was denied entry to the Mac McCarty retirement party when the guest of honor greeted him at the door and said, "You shouldn't be here, no wimps allowed."

Much to everyone's surprise Peter Hill showed up for the 10 year reunion.

When asked what he liked best about America after spending one full year attending North Shore, Carlos Andino answered in a gruff, low voice, "Judas Priest."

At the gala fete for the opening of his new hotel in Hollywood, Florida, Fredrik Andersson was asked to describe the public reaction to his new golf course. Andersson, clad in a tuxedo, pulled out a five iron and said, "Is Tornado."

Jill Levitetz was the source of a major chemical explosion and fire last week when the prehabeocorpuseterin-sorbitolium in her aerospray reacted with the ultraviolet light of a sun lamp, instantly detonating and obliterating most of Milwaukee, Wisconsin and sending fallout over most of the Midwest.

Chesly Manly, the host of Dance Fever, the New $1.98 Beauty Pageant, The New Price is Right, The New Love Connection, and the New New Newlywed Game, was questioned in an interview by Dynamite magazine as to his flashy wardrobe. Chezra explained sheepishly, "I guess Bodacious Day got to me."

After working only three weeks on her new job as a school bus driver, Sophie Kolehmainen's bus was recalled so that caution signs could be repainted all over the sides and front of the vehicle (including the windshield). Kolehmainen was also rerouted to pick up kids from relatively vacant sections of town.

Al Lopez, recently quoted as saying "I feel I grew a lot during my years at North Shore," is now a major restaurant entrepreneur. Big A's Huts O'Muffins are springing up all over New Jersey.

Former basketball star Patty Campos has decided to run for mayor of Chicago. Campos was quoted as saying, "If youse guys don't vote for me, I'll send my boyfriend Ronny to mess youse up."

In a related note, campaign front-runner Jan Reed, upon hearing Campos' announcement, laughed heartily and said, "Hey girl, there be no way that you can beat me." A debate has scheduled between the two adversaries.

Lori Staiman went on a shooting rampage last week when she learned that the Coca-Cola Company intended to discontinue production of Diet Coke. When arrest by police, she stated, "Oh, my God. You just don't understand, I have to have my Diet Coke."

Air Cohen slippers just hit the market. According to David Cohen, they are for those people who do absolutely nothing.

Bumper Car driver Navarra Rodriguez recently joined the pro circuit. When asked about the reasons behind her somewhat bizarre career choice, she replied, "I like it because it's kind of violent."

Jeff Snyder was sentenced to ten years in prison for violating Northfield noise regulations. It seems that his neighbors had been complaining about the lack of a muffler on Jeff's Fiat, which is purportedly the same car that he drove in high school.

Southern Belle Tracy Moore has decided to return to North Shore to join Edee Madsen as a P.E. teacher. She was quoted as saying, "I believe that every student should make running a part of his everyday life."

Saturday Night Live castmember Laura Heinz was fired after only one season. According to producer Colm Davis, "All she ever came up with were these really lame skits about High School Dances."

Greenpeace Advocate Heather Goldman was almost clubbed to death by a seal hunter the other day. When asked for comment, she replied, "I just really hate shallow-minded people."

When asked to help contact all of the members of the Class of '89 for the 10 year reunion, Josh Neufeld shook his head and said, "It's not going to work, man. It'll take too long."

Alumnus Rocker Howie Statland came back to the auditorium to play for Morning Ex. By the end of his performance, all of the faculty had walked out, except for Scoot Dimon, who joined Howie on stage to scream in unison, "Rock 'n' Roll, Man."

Dina Healy, starring in her own T.V. Show, The Singing Judge, is giving serious competition to the People's Court. When asked about her bizzare professional choice, she flipped her hair back with her hand, made a small giggle, and said, "Well, it was the only way to reconcile my two career choices."

Psychologist Sarah Horwood has discovered a new psychological condition known as chronic tardiness. Horwood believes that her discoveries will have a profound impact on education everywhere, saying, "Oh, my God. If MY teachers in high school only knew and had understood..."

Contortionist Bridget Zieserl succeeded in simultaneously dislocating every joint in her body.

Andrew Lloyd Weber has decided to make a remake of the movie/play Grease, starring none other than former North Shore student Aline Tissot. She commented on the part by saying, "It must have been the way I said, 'Sandy, what did you do this summer?' "

Ann-Lise Guisset showed up a couple months early for the reunion, just in time for the auction. When asked about her early return, she smiled and said, "Well, I had such a fun time Senior year, I didn't want to miss it."

Mark Ferris, road manager for the Grateful Dead, had a custom made truck built for him so that he could both reach the pedal and see over the steering wheel at the same time.

Peter "Airre Pierre" Geyer at last account was seeing the supporting actress of Pee-wee's Big Adventure, Large Marge. According to Pierre, Marge has him a great deal in writing some brand new lyrics for the Airre Pierre fight theme.

Author/bodybuilder Rob Zgonena has published his new autobiography and guidebook, How to be like Rob. The 600 page book features a different topless picture of the author on every page for everyone to enjoy.

Steve Tepper was recently offered over a million dollars by the Smithsonian for his 1978 Station Wagon-the last of its kind. Steve looked at the representative, stuck out his tongue, said, "Nope!", and rumbled away.

Miss Nautilus Allison Plache has just announced her engagement to Ryne Sandberg. When asked how the two lovebirds met, she gave a toss of her hair, flexed her muscles, and replied, "I met him at the Plex."

In a surprise move, Tim Kramer finally paid off the forty dollars he owed the Junior Class raffle of 1988.

Trappist monk Thom Hilbink has been excommunicated by the pope because he refused to take off his "Beat the Bishop" silk screen T-shirt that he wore under his robes.

It was recently discovered that Black Historian Scott Koral has been moonlighting for years selling beer at the Chicago Bulls, Cubs, Blackhawks, Bears, and Sox games. When asked why, Koral stated, "I just couldn't stay away from the games."

Famed stage actor Alex Sargeson has taken a dramatic new turn in his career by playing Rapunzel in an off-Broadway production. Alex was pleased with the fact that "I don't even need a wig."

Rumor has it that Colm Davis was last seen kissing his onetime sweetheart Kyla Shafer. He has been missing ever since.

Fans were shocked as Heather Axelrod, the first female NBA player, actually jumped high enough to be able to place a copy of the Sunday Chicago Tribune between her feet and the floor.

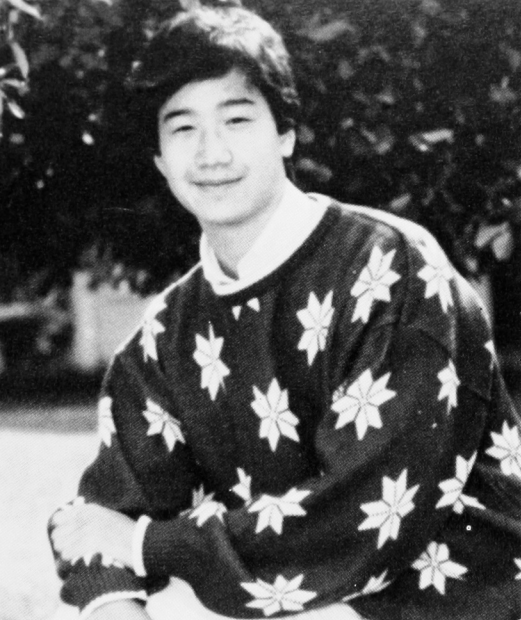

When asked to show up to the 10 year reunion, Karsten Rutten refused. He said, "I just have too much to do on my still life of Germany."

Muscle man Rob Angert requested upon arriving at college that all of the weight lifting equipment be moved to the girls' gymnasium. That way, he can work out while watching the girls.

We don't know what graduate Marc Bennett is doing these days because he hasn't bothered to tell anyone...

Opening for Howie Statland's band is none other than Chapin Hemphill and his mutant midget act. Chapin is currently on a publicity tour for his new home video.

Deerfield City Planner Geoff Goldman was laughed out of city hall when he proposed that a new subdivision be built with only perfectly straight roads. Said his superior Andy Wood, "He never did like curves and did his best to eliminate them even in High School."

Senior Prophecies

Rolling Stone Reporter Ian P. Murphy was last seen sharing a bottle of Thunderbird at Exit with none other than P.M.R.C. maven Tipper Gore. The couple was listening to the new WASP album.

At the 10 year reunion, much to everyone's surprise, John Anton showed up in a macaroni necklace given to him by one of his beloved kindergarten students.

Frankie Ai's new Saturday morning T.V. show, Frankie's Pun House, has given Peewee's Playhouse some serious competition.

Dedicated to keeping the the public abreast of the latest developments in weight loss, Liz Zahn has recently published her new book, How to Reduce Weight over the Holidays.

Professional Stunt man Cyrus "mighty mite" Oelerich attributes his successful career to four years of playing basketball at North Shore.

Jason Rosenberg was denied entry to the Mac McCarty retirement party when the guest of honor greeted him at the door and said, "You shouldn't be here, no wimps allowed."

Much to everyone's surprise Peter Hill showed up for the 10 year reunion.

When asked what he liked best about America after spending one full year attending North Shore, Carlos Andino answered in a gruff, low voice, "Judas Priest."

At the gala fete for the opening of his new hotel in Hollywood, Florida, Fredrik Andersson was asked to describe the public reaction to his new golf course. Andersson, clad in a tuxedo, pulled out a five iron and said, "Is Tornado."

Jill Levitetz was the source of a major chemical explosion and fire last week when the prehabeocorpuseterin-sorbitolium in her aerospray reacted with the ultraviolet light of a sun lamp, instantly detonating and obliterating most of Milwaukee, Wisconsin and sending fallout over most of the Midwest.

Chesly Manly, the host of Dance Fever, the New $1.98 Beauty Pageant, The New Price is Right, The New Love Connection, and the New New Newlywed Game, was questioned in an interview by Dynamite magazine as to his flashy wardrobe. Chezra explained sheepishly, "I guess Bodacious Day got to me."

After working only three weeks on her new job as a school bus driver, Sophie Kolehmainen's bus was recalled so that caution signs could be repainted all over the sides and front of the vehicle (including the windshield). Kolehmainen was also rerouted to pick up kids from relatively vacant sections of town.

Al Lopez, recently quoted as saying "I feel I grew a lot during my years at North Shore," is now a major restaurant entrepreneur. Big A's Huts O'Muffins are springing up all over New Jersey.

Former basketball star Patty Campos has decided to run for mayor of Chicago. Campos was quoted as saying, "If youse guys don't vote for me, I'll send my boyfriend Ronny to mess youse up."

In a related note, campaign front-runner Jan Reed, upon hearing Campos' announcement, laughed heartily and said, "Hey girl, there be no way that you can beat me." A debate has scheduled between the two adversaries.

Lori Staiman went on a shooting rampage last week when she learned that the Coca-Cola Company intended to discontinue production of Diet Coke. When arrest by police, she stated, "Oh, my God. You just don't understand, I have to have my Diet Coke."

Air Cohen slippers just hit the market. According to David Cohen, they are for those people who do absolutely nothing.

Bumper Car driver Navarra Rodriguez recently joined the pro circuit. When asked about the reasons behind her somewhat bizarre career choice, she replied, "I like it because it's kind of violent."

Jeff Snyder was sentenced to ten years in prison for violating Northfield noise regulations. It seems that his neighbors had been complaining about the lack of a muffler on Jeff's Fiat, which is purportedly the same car that he drove in high school.

Southern Belle Tracy Moore has decided to return to North Shore to join Edee Madsen as a P.E. teacher. She was quoted as saying, "I believe that every student should make running a part of his everyday life."

Saturday Night Live castmember Laura Heinz was fired after only one season. According to producer Colm Davis, "All she ever came up with were these really lame skits about High School Dances."

Greenpeace Advocate Heather Goldman was almost clubbed to death by a seal hunter the other day. When asked for comment, she replied, "I just really hate shallow-minded people."

When asked to help contact all of the members of the Class of '89 for the 10 year reunion, Josh Neufeld shook his head and said, "It's not going to work, man. It'll take too long."

Alumnus Rocker Howie Statland came back to the auditorium to play for Morning Ex. By the end of his performance, all of the faculty had walked out, except for Scoot Dimon, who joined Howie on stage to scream in unison, "Rock 'n' Roll, Man."

Best friends will never end
So let's not pretend that this is the end.

Dear friends,

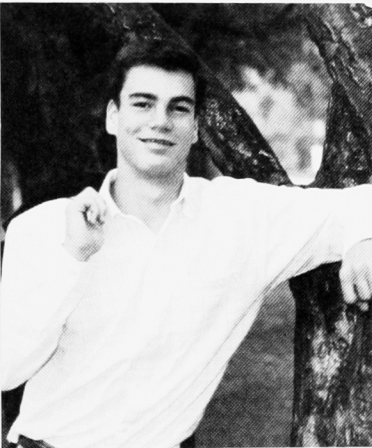

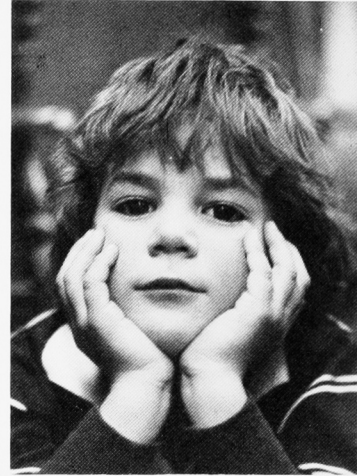

I thank you all for the support you have given to the memories of Alex and Nic, to each other, and to myself. The following poem is addressed to all, but especially to you students:

If I could just be with you now,
I would hold you
and say that everything's going to be okay...
and you would know that I meant it, you'd be able to tell
by the meaning in my eyes
and the sincerity of my hand in yours.
And you would be able to know how much I believe in you... that you can make it through any gray days ahead, because I've seen you before...
shine so brightly from within.

We've put in our time
So here's a small rhyme
Since we girls and boys
Are squealing with joy
We'll take our last bow
So don't look for us now
You can look here and there
You can look everywhere
You can look here in school
But we're gone.

LOVE, The Class of 1989

TO THE CLASS OF 1989: Don't take any wooden Indians. Always wear clean underwear, in case of underwear fiends. Be careful of what you wish for: maybe someone else will get it. Always look a gift horse in the eye. If you can't say something nice, don't say anything very loud. A miss is as good as a mister. You can't have your cake and juggle too. Don't swim in the rain: you might get wet. Always wash your hands after going to the bathroom: you don't know where you've been. If something is worth doing, it's worth doing for money. Two wrongs don't make a mountain out of a molehill. Imitation is the sincerest form of boredom. You can't judge a book by its cover, especially Catcher In The Rye. The fastest way to a man's heart is through his aorta. A fool and his money are soon a fool and a Pet Rock. If wishes were horses, people probably wouldn't wish for horses. Silence is yellowish, with tinges of brown. Don't wear white until Easter or after 3:30. Never answer the phone until the sixtieth ring. Always chew each bite for at least an hour. If you make that face for too long your head will blow clean off. Don't marry for money--marry for really good applesauce. Don't sleep with a man you don't marry, and don't marry a man who snores. That crust could feed all of the starving people in Highland Park. You can choose your friends, but you can't choose your number at the butcher shop. If you lose an eyelash, put it on your wrist, make a wish, and blow it into your friend's eye. I scream, you scream, we all scream for Valvoline.

Congratulations and love, Ian, Karen and Kathleen
